Toledo at St. Paul. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 13.-By taking the first game of to-day's double-header 17, was to be played over. Bunched hits won the second game for the locals. Score: Indianapolis split even on the series. The victory of the Hoosiers was due almost entirely to the wildness of Hedges in the second inning, while in the second game they were shut out by Meredith, although Farrell and Sanford. they secured the same number of hits. Kellum pitched the first game, and except for one inning he kept the Brewers' hits so well scattered that they were able. to get but two runs from their eleven con- day's game for South Bend. Score: nections. Hedges allowed only four hits, but in one inning he passed three men to first and allowed two singles. This proved his downfall. Williams pitched good ball except in one inning in the second game, while his support was not as good as that accorded Kellum. Milwaukee gave Meredith perfect support, and not one of Watkins's men got past first base. Indianapolis won the first game early. Coulter started the second inning by beating out a bunt, and Woodruff walked. Heydon went out on bunt strikes, while an error by Viox enabled Marcan to reach first. Kihm was then passed, forcing in Coulter, and Kellum singled, scoring Woodruff and Marcan. A base on balls, a sacrifice and Tamsett's single scored Marcan in the seventh. In the meantime Kellum had been pitching great ball and receiving excellent support. Two singles by the Brewers in the fifth were useless, but in the sixth three singles got two men around the bases, despite the best efforts of the Hoosiers. Fox, Marcan and Tamsett played excellent games in this contest, while Coulter made several pretty catches in center field. None of the three errors was glaring. At the bat Coulter got two hits, one a bunt and the other a single through the pitcher's box, which Hedges should have knocked down. Tamsett and Kellum got the only clean hits. Wood played a great game at third, accepting eleven chances, many of them difficult and sensational, without an error. In the second game it was a case of Indianapolis being up against superb pitching and perfect and brilliant support. Only thirty batters faced Meredith during the game. He gave but one pass, and three of the four Hoosiers who singled were caught at second, the other dying at first. The fielding of the Brewers was brilliant and at times sensational, while at the bat they found Williams for four doubles and as many singles. It was the bunching of these in one inning that gave Milwaukee a chance to score. Williams's support was poor at critical times, but with the exception of the well. In the second game Miller was acsixth and eighth inning he was invincible. The playing of Tam at third was one of the features of the second game, while Score: the Milwaukee outficio 's made several brilliant catches. Score: FIRST GAME. V. JOURNALISM AS LIFE WORK.

No Substitute for Practical Training in a Newspaper Office. Chicago Record-Herald.

One of this year's high school graduates San Francisco to-night at the Empire Thehas written for advice that will aid him in ater. A ten-round boxing contest between entering upon "journalism as a profession." The first thing for him to do is to drop the Hugo Kelly, of Chicago, and Charles Miller, use of the term "journalism," with all the pleasant illusions that cluster about it, and of Milwaukee, will be given. There will also be a semi-windup of six rounds between take under consideration instead the plain Kid Henderson, of this city, and Kid Carsey, of Chicago. There will also be two four-round preliminaries between young and matter-of-fact business of "newspaper writing and editing." Often the question is asked "Is a college education a necessary fighters who have shown much ability in or desirable preliminary?" and to this it may be answered that all educational opportunities which are well employed are likely to prove serviceable. The point is one upon which it is futile to dogmatize since The directors of the Commercial Bowling college means different things to different League will hold their annual meeting next men, but there is an advantage, of course, Thursday night at the Grand Hotel. The newspaper writer or editor in whatever department of work depends continuously upon that quality known as the "news instinct." The best place, in fact the only place, in which to develop it is the environment of the office. No process has ever yet been found by means of which a lad who succeeds in absorbing only a little of it in his work can be given more of it artificially. Another essential requirement of a newspaper man is knowledge of men, which involves both the ability to draw information from any and every man he meets, and the further ability to test the value of each utterance as it is made. This

Most newspaper men must get this further training concurrently with their daily work, if they get it at all. And if they do not get it close limits are put to their success. Newspaper men rarely advise their young friends to enter upon the work. To those who do enter they urge the importance of painstaking accuracy, of inwavering loyalty to fact and of persist-
